SLATER CONNOR GOES CROWDER ONE BETTER

Work, War or Workhouse, Adds the Thrifty Justice as He Acts for Colleague.

Work, war or workhouse is the propaganda in the court of Squire Slater Connor, who is sitting for Squire J. M. Dobbs, who is seeking re-election. Friday morning Deputy Sheriff Allan Parker rounded up a good vagrant in Bill Haynes and he was arrested and taken before Squire Connor, where it was proved he had not worked but five days since the first of May. He was fined $25 and costs and workhouse bound.

Somewhere in France

Earl G. McKeehan, Chattanooga boy, who is "somewhere in France," has written to homefolks that he is in good health and fine spirits and that the boys are all well. He said he wished he could tell a big "stunt" they were going to pull off "over there" soon, but could not just yet. He explained that he enjoyed reading the papers sent him. "I received a letter from you today," he wrote, "and also little Bud's. Tell him his letters please me more than anything in France."

Young McKeehan has many friends in Chattanooga. He was one of the old Troop B boys, having volunteered in the 117th engineers after going to Greenville last August. He sailed for France on Oct. 17.

Mysterious Pigeon Stops For Rent En Route South

A mysterious carrier pigeon lighted on the water tank behind The News office Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Its mes-sage was plainly visible in the quili around its leg. At first it was supposed to be one of the Sixth division birds in training. However, inquiry developed training. However, inquiry developed that the Oglethorpe birds were not flying.

For State Legislature

Was it possible that other army birds are flying through Chattanooga, perhaps to Camp Gordon? Or it is even possible that some German spy has introduced the carrier pigeon to avoid the censership at the post.

The bird steamed was a set from a The bird seemed weary as if from a long flight. After resting some half-hour it disappeared southward.
